Grandma:

Anas, have you seen my glasses?

No, Grandma, but I'll help you look for them.

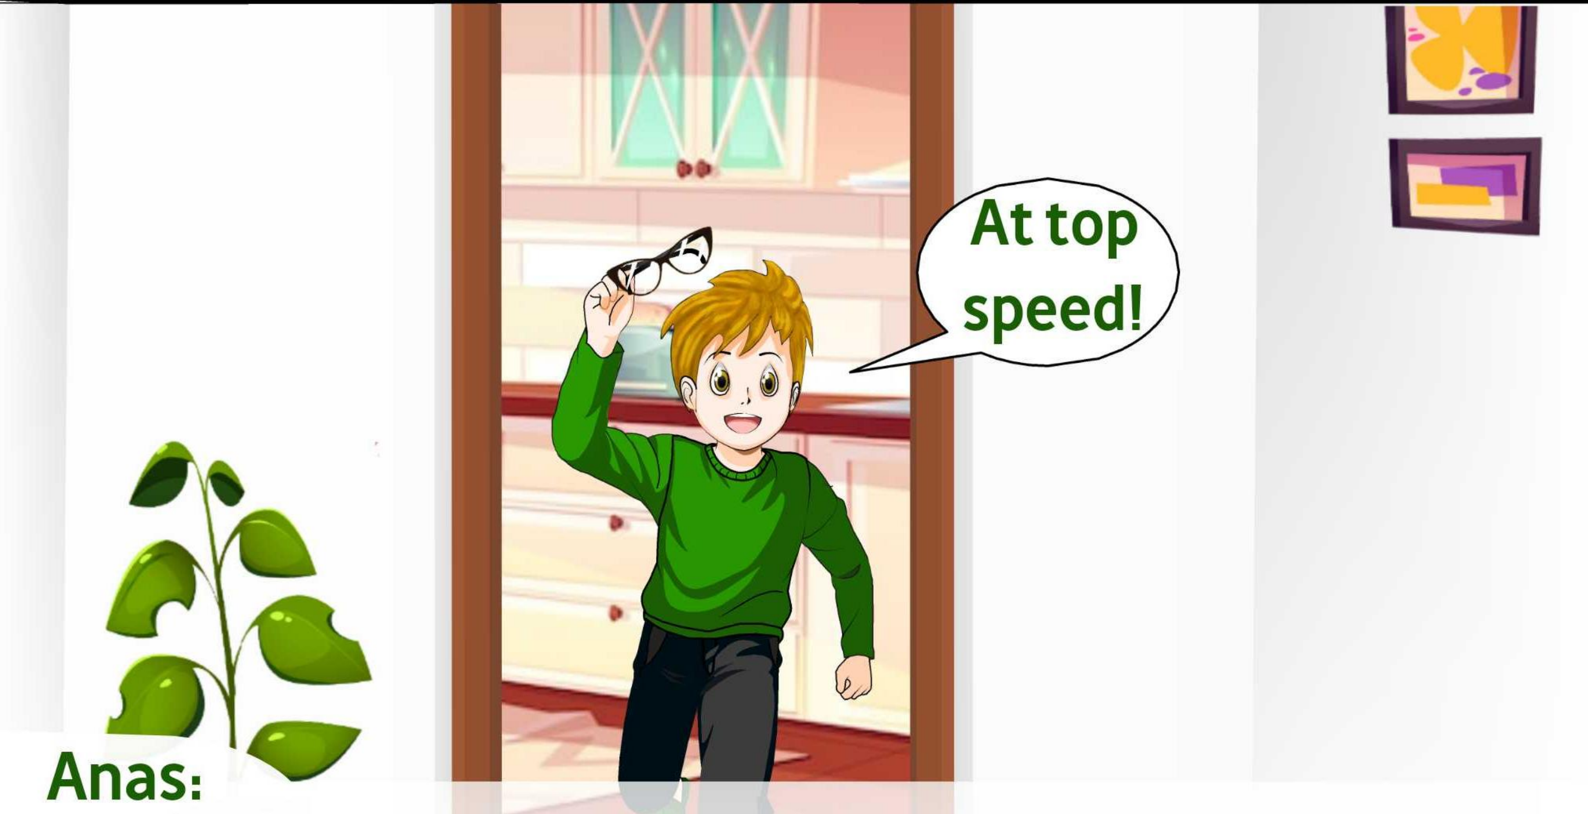

Grandma:

I don’t remember where I put them.

Anas:

You were in the kitchen—so I'll search there.

Anas:

Grandma, here they are! They were on the shelf.

Grandma:

Alhamd-u lillah! ... then thank you, my energetic Annous!

Alhamd-u lillah

or

Thanks, Allah

Anas:

Grandma, you say "Alhamd-u lillah," and I'll say "Praise be to Allah"—it's clearer!

Haha! But the phrase "Alhamd-u lillah" helps us express our feelings quickly!

Anas:

Quickly? I love speed! But how does it work?

Grandma:

It's like saying: "I praise You, O Allah, because You were kind and generous to me with this!"

=

I praise You, O Allah, because You were kind and generous to me with this!”

Anas:

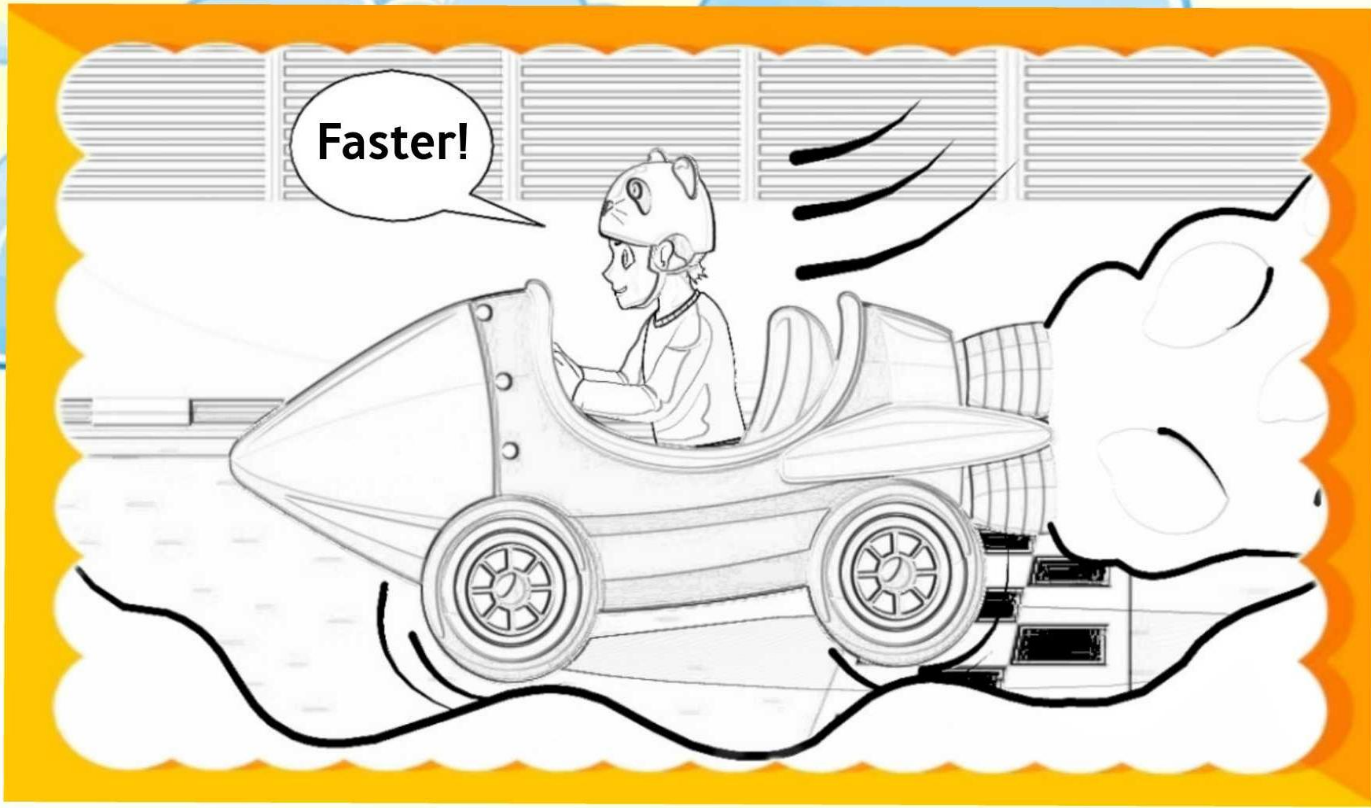

Wow! All that sentence becomes just two words—“Alhamd-u lillah”?

Anas:

That’s an amazing shortcut... Alhamd-u lillah for teaching me—then thank you, Grandma!
